CONFIDENTIALPART IINARRATIVE SUMMARY

HMM - 164 returned to Okinawa, Japan during the month of January after a seven month deployment as a Composite Helicopter Squadron with the 31st MAU. The Squadron flew a total of 295 hours during the month, most of which was in support of 2nd Battalion, 4th Marines which was conducting unit training in the Zambales Training Area, Subic Bay, R. P. Major General ARMSTRONG, Major General HOFFMAN, and Major General HOUGHTON flew aboard HMM - 164 aircraft for inspection tours of the Subic Bay training areas during this time frame. On 26 January 1975, the Squadron off-loaded from USS Tripoli at White Beach, Okinawa, Japan and returned to its home base, MCAS(H) Futema.

February and March were months of change and reorganization for HMM - 164. The Squadron went from an onboard strength of 46 Officers and 220 Enlisted men on 1 January 1975 to 28 Officers and 139 Enlisted men on 31 March 1975. Quality Assurance audits for all aircraft were the first order of business for the Squadron when returning from seven months of sea duty. With the transfer and rotation of many of the pilots and the influx of new men, an active training and refamiliarization program was instituted. Although in a state of transition, HMM - 164 was still able to actively support the 3rd Marine Division and its training requirements as exemplified by Mission 215 of 28 February when the Squadron lifted four infantry companies and their associated equipment from Camp Hansen to the Northern Training Area. During the month of February the squadron flew a total of 270 hours with approximately one half of this time being devoted to pilot and crew member training and the other half spent in support of the Division. In March the squadron flew 336.5 hours, 161 of which were devoted to Squadron training and 110.9 were flown in support of the 3rd Marine Division. On 27 March two aircraft, 4 Officers and 15 Enlisted personnel were transferred to HMM - 165 and loaded aboard USS Blueridge which joined elements of the 7th Fleet in the South China Sea to participate in Operation Eagle Pull and Operation Frequent Wind. Three days later, the Squadron was tasked to lift elements of the 1st Battalion, 4th Marines from Camp Hansen to White Beach to load aboard USS Dubuque and join the USS Blueridge on its way south.

Within a week, HMM - 164 was again tasked to supply aircraft and personnel to support the 7th Fleet in its operations in South East Asia. On 4 April HMM - 164's Operation Frequent Wind Detachment; which consisted of 6 CH-46 helicopters, 13 Officers and 65 Enlisted men; flew aboard USS Midway with other units from MAG-36.

A Change-of-Command Ceremony was held on 14 April; LtCol. ALLEN's relief was LtCol. J. S. LOOP. LtCol. LOOP joined the Frequent Wind Detachment in Cubi Point, R. P. on 5 May 1975. HMM - 164(Rear) at MCAS(H) Futema flew 45.2 hours during May, the majority of which was devoted to squadron training.

The Frequent Wind Detachment, which constituted the majority of the Squadron assets, returned to Okinawa on 22 June 1975 aboard USS Duluth. Two days later, on 24 June, while on a routine training flight in the Northern Training Area, YT - 05 crashed killing the three crewmen on board. Memorial services were held for Capt. R. D. NEWMAN, 1stLT. C. E. SNYDER AND S/Sgt. J. F. KUNZE on 29 June in the MCAS(H) Futema Chapel.

During the 2nd half of Fiscal Year 1975 the squadron flew a total of 1252.1 hours, 1438 sorties carrying 4478 passengers and 23.3 tons of cargo.
